

The Funeral

Thinking about death is a great way to focus your life on what is really important. Some religions recommend meditating in cemeteries to remind yourself that life is short and precious. Take a few moments to imagine how you want your funeral to be. What do you want written on your tombstone? How long do you plan to live? What will people say about you? What will you have accomplished?

At my funeral, people will describe me as:

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.
- 4.
- 5.

By the time I die, I will have accomplished these things:

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.
- 4.
- 5.

Now draw your tombstone. Add dates based on how old you hope to be, a few graphics that represent you, and a short epitaph (inscription that describes you; Frank Sinatra's was, "The Best is yet to Come.")
